C DIFF SCANDAL BOSS LOSES HER BID FOR PAY-OFF

■ BY ANNA WHITE

THE disgraced former chief executive at the helm of Maidstone Hospital during the superbug scandal that led to the deaths of 90 patients has lost her pay-off claim.

Rose Gibb sued Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust for breach of contract after it refused to pay her the full £250,000 severance pay.

She claimed she had been made a "scapegoat" over the scandal, but the judge at the High Court, Mr Justice Treacy, yesterday dismissed her claims and ordered her to pay costs, which for the trust alone are expected to be £90,000.

DEFEATED: Rose Gibbs' claim for severance pay were dismissed at London's High Court

Ms Gibb left the trust days before a highly critical Healthcare Commission report into two outbreaks of Clostridium difficile at the trust's hospitals during 2004 and 2006, was published in October 2007.

The report from the watchdog cited management failings and poor hygiene control for the outbreaks of the superbug at Maidstone, Kent and Sussex, and Pembury hospitals.

Court papers showed when Ms Gibb learned she was being forced from her job she originally aimed for a severance package of £300,000, which was then reduced to £250,000.

At the time of the scandal, Health Secretary Alan Johnson stopped the trust giving Ms Gibb the six-figure payout, instead she received £75,000 - half of her salary as chief executive.

She claimed the trust had breached her contract and that if she had known she would not receive the full

£45,000 job to help council cut back spending

EXCLUSIVE

BY EMILY HALL

THE council has been slammed for bidding to save money – by employing a £45,000-a-year partnership manager.

Maidstone council wants to employ a money-saving guru to help it – and four other local authorities – get through the current economic woe.

But the job comes with benefits and a juicy pay packet of up to £45k – nearly £20k more than the average full-time Maidstone dweller earns.

The position would see the lucky candidate heading up the Mid Kent Partnership, a group of councils including Maidstone, Ashford, Swale and Tunbridge Wells, as well as Kent County Council, which recently lost millions when the Icelandic banks collapsed.

The jargon-filled job brief described the partnerships as a “progressive and committed group of local authorities... working together to improve services and deliver savings.”

It went on: “We are now looking for someone who can work with the senior members and officers to drive this programme of work forward, develop new business cases and see proposals through to implementation.”

The job has been created to try to tackle the crunch effect on local authorities struggling to keep front-line services despite losing cash from fewer people using things like town car parks and swimming pools.

The post holder will be employed by Maidstone council, but will work to “improve efficiency” for all five authorities during the one-year contract.

But some residents have criticised what they see as the “huge” salary.

Dan Lock, who lives in Maidstone and earns less than £20,000 a year, said: “It's good they're trying to save

HIGH PRICE: The money-saving guru selected will earn more than double that of the average Maidstone resident money, but galling for people like me who work really hard and still struggle to make ends meet.”

Matthew Elliott, chief executive of the Tax Payers' Alliance added: “If the council is serious about delivering savings to taxpayers, they should cut out waste from their budgets and hire less faceless bureaucrats. We're in a recession, and it's high time those at the council started tightening their belts like the rest of us.”

But a Maidstone council spokesman said whoever clinched the position would have to bring savings if they were to keep their job: “The post holder will make savings worth many times their salary.”

“The programme manager will work with the councils to identify savings and future shared service opportunities.”

“This is a one year contract in the first instance and the salary reflects the savings the post holder is expected to achieve. This job will pay for itself many times over.”

The deadline for applications for the post has now closed.

Muggers kicked and punched man on floor

A 49-YEAR-old man was left needing hospital treatment after he was mugged by three teenagers.

The man was walking home from the railway station through the alleyway from Commercial Road to Old Kent Road, in Paddock Wood, on Friday, April 17, when he became aware of three teenage males at the Old Kent Road end.

As the man approached the group they said something to him before pushing him to the floor and starting to punch and kick him.

He suffered a head injury and required hospital treatment as a result of the assault.

The man's wallet was taken from his pocket during the attack.

Prospective MP calls for Gurkhas support

LIBERAL Democrat hopeful Peter Carroll is calling on MPs to help overturn new settlement criteria which could see thousands of Gurkha veterans deported.

Campaigners have hit out at the recent announcement that retired Gurkha soldiers who served for the British Army before 1997 will not be able to stay in the UK unless they meet new criteria.

The parliamentary candidate for Maidstone and Weald at the next General Election, who is also one of the founders of the Gurkha Justice campaign, has called on the Liberal Democrats and Conservatives to join forces against the decision.

Charity runs hit target

ORGANISERS of the Race for Life are “delighted” that thousands of women have signed up to fill all of the spaces for both Maidstone events.

Cancer Research UK has hit its target of signing up 8,000 mums, daughters, grandmothers and sisters to walk, jog or run 5k, in two events in Mote Park.

The first of the races being held at the Maidstone park will be on Sunday, May 17 and the second on Sunday, June 7.

Relief as rescue plan saves farmers market

Stallholder pleased with support given

■ BY ANNA WHITE

A POPULAR farmers market has been saved from closure after county council bosses and another market came to its rescue.

The future of West Malling Farmers Market was first threatened when its management company Hughmark collapsed.

This blow was followed by Tonbridge and Malling council withdrawing its £7,000 per year funding and failing to renew the road closure arrangement which allows the market to go ahead in the High Street.

Rescue talks began when Steve Woods, of Meopham Farmers Markets, contacted Liberal Democrat councillor Trudy Dean, who represents Malling Central at Kent County Council, with an offer to run the market.

Cllr Dean then approached KCC leader Paul Carter, who agreed to put up funding to keep the market going for two years to allow time for a new organisation to be put in place.

The rescue deal has received support from West Malling parish council and Malling Action Partnership, who have pledged to pay towards better advertising and set up a support group.

Bob Taylor, of Kent Farmers Markets, and

STILL TRADING: Tracy Robertson with her family buying goods from Steve Woods at West Malling Farmers Market

Julie Monkman, of Produced in Kent, also stepped up to offer their support to get the West Malling market back up and running.

To ensure it can still go-ahead in its usual location in the High Street and at the same time of 10am to 2pm, KCC officers made sure they had secured a new road closure before the April market, which was held on Sunday.

Cllr Dean said: "It has been a real rollercoaster, but I am delighted to say the market will now continue as before. I am very grateful to Paul Carter and Meopham Farmers Markets for coming to the rescue. We have two years to put the market on a firm financial footing.

"Other businesses in West Malling are starting to open up so they can really benefit from visitors to the market."

Speaking at Sunday's market Mr Woods, who runs the Love Chillies stall, said: "I am so grateful to Trudy for helping us out and using her contacts to make sure the market stays, we couldn't have done it without her."

The market takes place on the fourth Sunday of every month.

Protestors invite you to join march

HUNDREDS of campaigners are expected to take part in a march on Bank Holiday Monday in protest against the proposed Kent International Gateway.

The demonstration has been organised by StopKIG, a pressure group determined to save the green space earmarked for development under the controversial scheme. Protestors will gather on Bearsted Green.

A planning meeting will be held three days later at Maidstone Studios at 6pm for Maidstone council to decide how it would have ruled on the application.

A public inquiry will be held later this year after the decision was taken out of the council's hands.

Protect Kent chairman Richard Knox-Johnston said his group was against the development and urged like-minded residents to make their voices heard.

He said: "We will certainly be at the planning inquiry starting in autumn, making a strong point that the proper planning procedure has not been followed in the case of KIG."

The KIG proposal would see a freight interchange built on acres of countryside at the foot of the North Downs.

Police search for road rage attacker

OFFICERS are appealing for witnesses after a 22-year-old man was assaulted in a road rage attack on Sunday.

A man in a red car, believed to be a Ford Mondeo, attacked the victim while he sat in his car at traffic lights in Bishops Way, Maidstone, at 3.50pm.

The offender is aged between 33 and 37, with short shaven hair and blue eyes.

Anyone with information is asked to contact DS Tristan Stevens at Mid Kent Police on 01795 419338 or call Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

payment she would not have left. During the ruling at the London court on Tuesday morning, Ms Gibb was also refused permission to appeal.

After the hearing the NHS trust's new chief executive Glenn Douglas said: "We welcome the court's decision which supports the view of the trust and the NHS as a whole.

"This high-profile case has been the cause of anxiety for many people and I hope this brings some comfort to them. It is the right decision.

Apology

"We would again like to publicly apologise for what happened during the C-diff outbreaks that occurred while Ms Gibb was chief executive of the trust.

"Under new management and with new procedures and strict infection control measures, we have subsequently achieved some of the lowest infection rates in the country.

"Our priority is and will continue to be to provide safe, high-quality care for our patients."

Police find runaway pilot who admitted cannabis charges

A PILOT who went on the run after he pleaded guilty to several drug charges has been found in Somerset.

Police issued a warrant for Sid Clark, of Tonbridge Road, Barming, after he failed to turn up to his hearing at Maidstone Crown Court in February.

The 48-year-old was due to face charges of production and possession of cannabis, and abstraction of electricity. The case came after air accident investigators released a report into Mr Clark's plane crash, on February 23 last year, which suggested he may have been on drugs at the time of the crash.

His Cessna 172M Skyhawk crashed into conifer trees bordering a house in Farthing Common, near Hythe. The impact sent the plane plummeting to the ground in the back garden of the property owned by an elderly couple.

Amazingly, Mr Clark, 58, from Barming, and passenger Tim Des Vignes, 53, a convicted drug smuggler on day release from prison, suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

After the crash Mr Clark said he had been taking his friend Mr Des Vignes on a "pleasure flight" to Dover and back as a treat.

Police raided his home several days after the crash where they found 300 cannabis plants and arrested Mr Clark on suspicion of growing cannabis.

Officers from Kent Police's East division of the Serious Organised Crime Unit made in-depth enquiries to locate Clark.

Kent Police worked with Avon and Somerset Police and a house in Shepton Mallet was raided on April 17, where Mr Clark was found and arrested for failing to appear in court.

He has been remanded in custody until his next court appearance on May 8.

An Age Positive stand will be on show tomorrow at the Business Advice Open Day at the Ramada Hotel, in Hollingbourne, to give employers to the opportunity to learn more about hiring older employees.

Steve Billam, from the Department for Work and Pensions' Age Positive team, said: "Our Age Positive stand will give employers access to practical guidance to successfully tap into this pool of talent."

Play equipment funding boost for autistic pupils

SCHOOL children with autism will be able to develop essential skills while they enjoy testing out their new play equipment.

The Quest School, in West Malling, has added to its range of educational equipment thanks to a donation of almost £500 from Britannia Building Society's Community Fund.

The school, which caters for children with autism, will also use the donation to develop its numeracy skills programme for the youngsters.

McDonalds serves new football kit to teen team

A YOUTH football team will be dressed in stylish new kits next time they walk on to pitch – thanks to a generous donation from their nearest McDonalds.

The village team will be able to use the new equipment to help them improve their skills on the pitch thanks to McDonald's community football programme.

Dogs put on trial at national Police finals

■ BY ANNA WHITE

THE finals of the National Police Dog Trials were held at Leeds Castle – but the Kent force did not compete after its champion dog was struck down with a medical condition.

This was the first time the event has been held in Kent in its prestigious 49-year history, so it was a big blow for Kent Police not to have its dogs taking part.

Twenty-eight finalists from across the UK competed at the historic castle in Hollingbourne from Thursday to Sunday after coming through regional heats.

But Kent's champion dog Rex, an Alsatian who specialises in tracking, searching, chasing and detaining offenders, had to be retired from the force after developing a spinal problem shortly after the force's trials.

Prestigious

Insp Preston Chalk, head of Kent Police's dog section based at Coldharbour, in Aylesford, said: "We were proud to be hosting such a prestigious national event here in the county."

"While officers from Kent police were not competing in the finals this year, the force's impressive track record is one of the reasons it was chosen to host the dog trials."

"We have won six national police dog titles in the past four years."

"But this year, our force champion had to be

CONTROL: Police dogs' obedience was tested to its limits at the National Police Dog finals held at Leeds Castle medically retired a week after the force trials due to a spinal condition, which meant it could not continue to work.

"This significantly affected our chances of qualifying for the nationals. It is disappointing but the welfare of our dogs is a priority."

The first two stages of the competition, which included searching and tracking, were held at an Ashford venue away from the public.

The final stages at Leeds Castle, which was free to watch for members of the public and attracted hundreds of spectators, involved work-related tests in obedience, agility, straight chase, stand-off, weapon and gun attack, emergency recall and crowd control.

The entrants were judged by a panel of police experts, including Sgt Jim Gall, of South Wales Police, Sgt Ian Craven, of the Metropolitan Police and PC Tony Ryan, of Lincolnshire Police.

Nottingham PC Dave Buckley and his dog Chaz were named winners of the national trials with a total score of 911 points.

The winning pair was presented with their award by Prince Michael of Kent after a formal parade of all the finalists on Sunday.

• Kent Police has filmed the National Dog Trials and we also sent a video team to cover the event. See the clips at www.yourkenttv.co.uk. Search 'dogs'.

St George's Day celebrations

FAMILIES were treated to a weekend of medieval celebrations in the county town to mark St George's Day.

The events kicked off on Thursday with a colourful parade through the town centre.

Children from Maidstone schools, a brass band and Indian dhol drummers marched from Week Street, through Fremlin Walk, to Brenchley Gardens, where the St George flag was raised in a special ceremony.

The celebrations carried on into the weekend with a medieval fayre on Saturday and Sunday, in Brenchley Gardens, offering clothing, jewellery, toys, tarot readings and a clown.

Maidstone Museum, in St Faiths Street, also held a scriptwriting lesson on Saturday, and visitors were treated to Celtic style, folk rock music which was playing in the bandstand.

On Sunday a mechanical fire breathing dragon and a robotic horse entertained the crowds and a traditional Scouts parade by its way through the town centre.

The events were organised by Maidstone council, North West Kent Racial Equality council and Town Centre Management, and supported by Kent County Council.

CAMPAIGN: Arthur Mercer (inset) fought to get the Chart Sutton pavilion rebuilt in the years leading up to his death

Villagers make vow to rebuild pavilion in honour of Arthur

A COMMUNITY has vowed to honour a dying man's wish to build a new sports pavilion – but they need to raise another £30,000 to make it come true.

Arthur Mercer was among the crowd with his father on Coronation Day in 1953 when Chart Sutton's existing sports pavilion was officially opened.

Since that day it has severely deteriorated and Arthur, who died in March, spent his final years continuously fund-raising for a new pavilion to be built in the village.

The community has now come together to continue his dedicated work and help achieve his final wish.

The small pavilion at the playing field in Warmlake Road is still used by local football clubs.

From the outside it looks shabby and tired, but on the inside there are leaks, gaping holes and a thick layer of mould.

The villagers have tried to redecorate to bring the pavilion back to life, but the mould continues to defeat their efforts.

Plans for a replacement have been drawn up and submitted to Maidstone council's planning committee.

They include space for activities, clubs, parties and meetings for all generations, but the cost of the new pavilion will be £60,000.

■ BY ANNA WHITE

The village has raised about £20,000 to add to Arthur's £10,000, by hosting a series of summer fetes, quizzes, Saturday markets and egg hunts for children.

Former Mayor of Maidstone and Independent Cllr Mike FitzGerald, who lives in Chart Sutton, said: "Some of the things growing on the ceiling [in the existing pavilion] look like they're from a different planet."

"The pavilion would be far more than just a sports facility. We want it to be a community space for young people, old people, children, families, everyone."

"And we've decided that, if we can get it built, we're going to call it the Arthur Mercer Pavilion. Arthur was such a lovely man. He loved Chart Sutton and he wanted the community to benefit from a new pavilion."

To raise awareness of their mission the community approached a local video production company to produce a short film about the campaign and about Arthur, which can now be seen on Yourkenttv.

Kersh Media, run by former BBC producer Graham Majin, donated its services free of charge to film the run-down site.

Mr Majin said: "We were pleased to get involved. Like many small rural communities in Kent, Chart Sutton is fighting hard to keep its sense of community alive."

"The village post office and shop closed in 2007, and a new pavilion could become a new focus for village life."

• To make a donation to the new pavilion fund please contact Cllr FitzGerald on 01622 743270.

OPENING DAY: The pavilion is opened on the Queen's Coronation day in 1953

NEWS IN BRIEF

Reopening breathes new life into museum

A REVAMPED family attraction has smashed its targets for April within the first days of its grand opening.

The Museum of Kent Life officially reopened as Kent Life on Saturday, April 4, after undergoing a £50,000 transformation.

Bosses say the new play areas and activities such as the piglet and ferret racing went down extremely well with its first visitors and that the site was "heaving with happy customers".

The park's figures show the attraction welcomed more than 1,000 people per day, with 7,000 people visiting during the four-day Easter weekend.

The total number of families visiting the newly improved site, in Sandling, was about 15,000 during the school holidays.

The impressive visitor records have more than trebled the total for the whole of April last year.

Warning to bogus callers

A COLD-callers control zone will be used in another Maidstone district to protect families from rogue traders and distraction burglars.

Maidstone and District Neighbourhood Watch Association will run the scheme in Broadoak Estate Avenue, Loose, after its success in other parts of Maidstone.

Signs will be put up in the area to warn off bogus callers and leaflets providing advice handed out to both householders and traders.

Lorraine Hemphrey, Neighbourhood Watch liaison officer, said: "It is now established that burglars and rogue traders are often linked."

Impress at park concert

UP-AND-coming bands will have the chance to wow crowds with their musical talent this summer at Jam in the Park.

The live show for youth bands, which is being organised by Maidstone Town Centre Management and New Line Learning Academies, will be held in Brenchley Gardens in Maidstone.

Bands will need to audition at the Zebra Bar in King Street on June 7, from midday to 6pm, for a chance to play live at Jam in the Park on Saturday, August 8.

To book an audition slot call 07894 423075 or email jaminthepark@hotmail.co.uk.

Hop on over to the Kent County Fair

FAMILIES will be able to enjoy a wide range of countryside-themed activities and events at The Hop Farm's annual Kent County Fair this bank holiday weekend.

This year the all-day arena at the Paddock Wood site will include pony club games, show jumping, Shire horse displays, and new dog agility and companion dog shows.

There will also be gun dog and terrier racing, ferret racing, a rabbit show and several types of birds of prey, including bald eagles, barn owls and peregrine falcons – which will all appear in a choreographed falconry demonstration.

FEATHERED FRIENDS: Meet the birds of prey

A group of Morris dancers will perform a traditional Kent dance and the Women's Institute dance group will be running regular demonstrations.

Those wanting to enjoy a bit of thrill-seeking can enjoy the fair's Action Zone, which includes tank and quad bike rides. Or if people are after something a bit less nail-biting there will be numerous shopping opportunities, such as craft demonstrations and Kent delicacies in the Food and Drink Pavilion.

The family park will also be revealing two new attractions this spring, the 3D Great Goblin Hunt and a restored vintage Victorian carousel, to add to its many other activities.

The Hop Farm has plenty of camping and caravanning facilities too if you fancy making a weekend break of it.

The event will run Saturday to Monday. Tickets can be booked at www.thehopfarm.co.uk and cost £11 and £36 for a family ticket.

QUESTION & ANSWER

PETER JONES

Q Can you tell us a little about yourself?

A I was born in Wales but my father worked in a bank so we moved quite a lot. I started school in Ipswich, then moved to Surrey and went to a grammar in Purley. I gained a place at Westminster Medical School and graduated in 1972. Postgraduate training was at Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge; St James's, Balham; St Richard's, Chichester; St George's, London, and finally back to Westminster, where I was a senior registrar. I was appointed consultant general surgeon at Maidstone in 1983.

Q Why did you want to become a breast surgeon?

A At the time there were no specialist breast surgeons. In those days we did a very long training, both in the hours worked and the years it took to become a consultant. We covered all aspects of general surgery, including breast problems. Over the years sub-specialisation increased and when, after 30 years, I came off the on-call rota, there was only time to deal with the ever-increasing workload at the Breast Clinic, although I still undertake general surgery in the private sector.

Q Working on a daily basis with breast cancer patients must be an emotional job, how do you stay positive?

A My wife and I see just over 300 newly-diagnosed breast cancer patients each year and it can be emotionally draining. However, we are able to support each other and have a fantastic team of specialists who share the strain. Our team and the superb environment in which we work keep our feet on the ground and help maintain a positive outlook. And with better outcomes for breast cancer patients, this is becoming easier.

Q Tell us about your working partnership with your wife.

A Sue came to help me set up the Breast Clinic in 1993 and since then we have worked closely together. Sue's years in general practice have contributed to her amazing communication skills and over the years she has developed the skills required to offer all types of breast reconstruction, both immediate and delayed, nipple reconstruction, breast augmentation and reduction. We enjoy working with each other and it is always great to have an instant second opinion available.

Q What services and support do you offer patients?

A We offer a comprehensive breast service. All our patients, both NHS and private, are seen in a one-stop clinic which includes taking a history, examination and all initial investigations, which usually include mammography and ultrasound. Together with colleagues I established a charity in 1995, the Mid Kent Breast Cancer Appeal, to support the work of the Breast Clinic and thanks to a hard-working team of fundraisers, this has helped provide modern equipment most breast clinics do not have immediate access to. We provide support to the patients ourselves, but the specialist breast care nurses play a major role.

Q Tell us more about the Breast Clinic at Maidstone Hospital?

A Five years ago a dream came true and Maidstone's Breast Clinic opened, which subsequently was named after the late Peggy Wood in recognition of her contribution to fundraising. The clinic is modern, tastefully decorated and provides a great environment for the clinic and the screening service, and is exclusive for the use of breast patients.

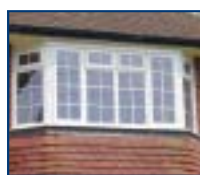

Q What do you think the benefits are of working both in private and public sectors of healthcare?

A The main benefits are that we are able to work with the same team of specialists. Our clinics are supported by a specialist breast care nurse and we have a combined breast clinic with the oncologist at least once a week at Somerfield Hospital. One of the most important aspects of patient care over recent years has been that all cancer patients, or patients suspected of having cancer, are discussed in a multidisciplinary team meeting. We believe this helps provide the best treatment options for patients and these are discussed with them on an individual basis after these meetings.

Q&A

The breast surgeon who works at the private Somerfield Hospital and Maidstone NHS Hospital talks to Anna White about his working partnership with his wife, and how he remains positive to help patients

Foreign truckers blamed for UK's porous borders

■ BY KEVIN O'SULLIVAN

THE true scale of Britain's lax border security has been revealed after shocking new figures showed that nine out of ten truckers bringing illegal immigrants into the country are foreign.

The UK Borders Agency admitted that of all the lorry drivers bringing in desperate migrants into the UK, 90 per cent were overseas drivers.

The figures, revealed following a Freedom of Information request, showed 1,571 foreign truckers were fined an estimated £2 million last year after clandestine migrants were found hiding in the back of their trucks.

In comparison, only 195 British hauliers were caught with stowaways and were fined some £300,000.

British drivers have accused their foreign counterparts of risking £2,000 fines per migrant found because they know they will not have to pay them.

The statistics only show what was collected by the agency, not the total amount of fines issued, meaning there is still more than £1million owed in fines by foreign truckers.

Shadow immigration minister Damian Green said the foreign truckers were "abusing" UK laws and that a crackdown was needed.

The Tory MP for Ashford said the £2,000 fines were not deterring foreign drivers, adding: "Clearly many are abusing our immigration laws and they should be punished effectively when they are found to be carrying migrants on board their lorries."

"This is why the Conservatives continue to call for a dedicated and specialist border police force."

PORT IN A STORM: Would-be migrants keeping warm in Calais, hoping to gain access to the UK

Trucker Mervyn Osgood, 54, from Maidstone, said: "It's an absolute farce – we always see the foreign drivers talking to the migrants in Calais."

"These figures don't surprise me at all."

He said foreign truckers caught with illegals on board simply ignored the fines handed to them – sometimes not even telling their bosses they had been caught.

He added: "They know they can get away with it because they don't seem to get prosecuted, so to them it's worth the risk."

"They get £1,500 from each illegal, so if they get four on they pocket around £6,000."

"Then they just unload their cargoes and head back to their countries."

"We can't do that because we live here and we take our jobs seriously."

The true extent of illegal migration is likely to be much bigger than the figures reveal.

The UK Border Agency admitted the stats do not reflect the fact that the 1,571 foreign lorry drivers may have brought in up to ten migrants or more a time.

A spokesman for the agency said: "These figures don't reflect the actual figure because there are often more than one clandestine found per vehicle."

The spokesman said that last year a total of 28,000 migrants was caught trying to sneak into Britain on board lorries crossing the Channel by ferry.

The stats also revealed the foreign truckers were fined a further £811,507 for working in Britain without the necessary haulage permits.

Peter Cullum, head of international affairs at the Road Hauliers Association of Great Britain, said British drivers were doing their best to avoid migrant hot-spots across the Channel.

He said: "We know most of the drivers coming across with migrants on board are foreign. It's very few of our guys."

Desperate migrant clung to Eurostar train at 186mph

AN ILLEGAL immigrant clung to the roof of a Eurostar as it hit a top speed of 186mph travelling through Kent, it has emerged.

The desperate migrant is thought to have jumped on to the train from an overhead bridge as it slowed before entering the Channel Tunnel near Calais.

He then clung to the roof for the 45-minute journey through the tunnel before the train reached Kent and hurtled towards London – with the man somehow holding on.

The migrant was only spotted at Ebbsfleet International Station, near Dartford, as he tried to slip down inbetween two carriages to make an escape.

The bid has highlighted how desperate the estimated 1,300 immigrants living around Calais have become to get into the UK.

Jumped

Michael Whelan, 38, a passenger on the Brussels to London service on Thursday, told a national newspaper: "I spoke to the train captain at Ebbsfleet and he told me the train slowed as it approached the tunnel at Calais so he thought the man probably jumped on to the roof there from an overhead bridge."

"I don't know how long he was on the roof, but one of the Eurostar workers spotted him on it at Ebbsfleet and then he hid in the gap between the carriages."

The man, thought to be of Indian descent and in his early 20s, was arrested by officers from the British Transport Police before being handed over to the UK Border Agency, which gave him a medical examination.

Passengers were delayed as sniffer dogs were brought in to search for further immigrants, but the man had carried out his death-defying stunt alone.

A Eurostar spokesman said: "A man believed to be an illegal immigrant was on one of the train carriages. He was removed and detained by British Transport Police. We can't comment on how he got there, but the train would have reached speeds up to 186mph between the tunnel and Ebbsfleet."

IT'S in season for just a few short weeks, but while it's here it's one of the taste sensations of the year. Kent asparagus is available now and as a special promotion anyone placing an order at www.foodforkent.co.uk will receive a FREE bunch so they can taste it for themselves. The special offer applies to every single order placed between now and next Sunday, May 3.

Simply log on and place your order at the site and before you know it, your shopping will arrive – complete with the free gift. Asparagus is the perfect example of a food benefiting from a reduction in food miles and is at its very best within hours of being picked. Meanwhile, next Saturday, May 2, the Penshurst farmers' market will be celebrating its arrival with an Asparagus Festival. It will showcase locally-grown asparagus, while local farmer Michael Bourne will be on hand to showcase the best way to cook and grow asparagus.

Alison Shamash, the Asparagus Festival organiser, said: "English asparagus is always popular with visitors to the market. It has only a short six-week season, and it needs to be as fresh as possible, so local is definitely best. "Asparagus contains high levels of vitamin A, folic acid and dietary fibre, which all play an important role in fighting cancer.

"It is also rich in soluble fibre, which has a protective effect against degenerative heart diseases. There are fewer than four calories per spear, and it is very low in cholesterol and has no fat. And because it's so local, it's very low in food miles, too."

BREAKTHROUGH HOME EDUCATION

Ahead of the field by light years

MAIDSTONE students are in demand after making a big impression wining and dining jockeys and their guests at the Cheltenham Festival.

The hospitality and catering students from MidKent College's Oakwood Park campus took on the challenge of becoming part of the 3,000 staff on duty at this year's horse-racing festival.

The team helped serve 18,000 bottles of champagne, 8,000 gallons of tea and coffee, 125,000 pints of Guinness and three tonnes of smoked salmon throughout the four-day event. The students started at 7am and worked in kitchens and hospitality boxes until 7pm to ensure everyone at the festival – which is the highlight of the National Hunt season – was catered for.

However, their hard work did not go unnoticed and college hospitality and catering programme leader Duncan Weetman was awarded a prize for having "the best students at Cheltenham" by festival floor manager Morag Wallis. Since the event the hard working team has been requested to work at other functions, such as Henley Regatta, Silverstone, Goodwood and Aintree.

Mr Weetman said: "This event has provided students with invaluable experience of working in a high-pressure, high-quality environment."

"It was well worth all their hard work to have made such a positive impression on the organisers. They have done incredibly well."

NVQ level two professional cookery student Rhys Ware, 17, from East Malling, said: "I was really proud to have been involved and it was a great experience for me.

"It was totally different cooking for such a large number of people and I enjoyed every moment of it."

NVQ level two hospitality student Carrie Caldecourt, 17, from West Malling, said: "We arrived on the Monday, started work on the Tuesday, and worked through until the Friday before coming home. It was hard work from start to finish, but great fun."

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in and around Maidstone...

Trekkie stereotypes help make the world go round

STEREOTYPES are a wonderful thing. They allow us to pigeonhole people in a quite remarkable way.

Whole nations can be referred to in a way which either acknowledges their strengths or, more often than not, underlines our own latent xenophobia.

Religious followers can find themselves all lumped together in a gloriously unfair description. And, however good you are in business, your position or occupation will mean most of us have some preconceived notions about you before you have uttered a word.

All opinions we form by stereotype rather than experience. And we all fall victim to the sweeping generalisations – some more than others – and always to varying degrees.

The vast majority are unfair. After all, most of them are just plain mean. But not all. Oh no. Some stereotypes are just plain fact. And when you see the persons to which they refer you will go away thinking 'cripes, they really WERE just like people warned me'.

The perfect example of this is the Trekkie. The die-hard Star Trek fan, who will immediately tell you they are actually a 'Trekker'. And with a new movie hitting the big screens this month they were out in force in London last week to cheer on their heroes at the premiere.

Now the stereotype would be of geeky-looking people – a cunning blend of still-living-with-your-parents-haircuts, acne, home-made props, stick-on Spock ears and life-long difficulty relating to the opposite sex.

And, sure enough, the gaggle of Spock-ear wearing, bad hair, awkward looking folk stood outside whatever cinema it was at Leicester Square proved there was a reason stereotypes are something not worth entirely dismissing.

Star Trek is a bizarre obsession for many but has all the key ingredients to generate the form of super fandom which takes people down the dubious path of obsession; its science fiction (which always attracts the fanatic), there have been outings on the big and small screen, spin-offs a-plenty, and enough merchandise to fill a small country.

But surely it has become such a joke to be a Trekkie that you'd think the real hardcore would realise people were laughing at – and crucially not with – them. You'd think they would make an effort to prove being a Star Trek fan didn't mean having a life-long aversion to basic levels of hygiene and even a nodding acquaintance with fashion. You'd think they'd want to smash the stereotype.

The only conclusion I can draw from this is that they actually enjoy the sense of belonging fulfilling the Trekkie stereotype brings with it.

And, after all, where would be the fun if they shattered that particular stereotype?

Beam me up, Scotty.

Folkestone's alternative festival is Hevy

HEADLINE: Feeder will perform at the old Rotunda

FEEDER, Ash and Gary Numan will be among the headline acts descending on Folkestone seafront this summer for the launch of a new music festival.

The old Rotunda amusement park at the foot of the cliffs will be the site of the Hevy Music Festival on Saturday, August 1, which will also feature a string of other indie-rock bands including Hundred Reasons, Kids In Glass Houses, Attack! Attack!, Sonic Boom Six and In Case Of Fire.

■ BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

The newest arrival to Kent's growing festival scene comes in the wake of the postponement last month of Red List Live at Port Lympne, due to increasing competition and the effects of the recession.

Promoter James Dutton said: "There are many fantastic new festivals being developed in Kent this year.

"To try to create something a bit different, and cater for a market that we felt could do with some attention, we're developing this as an alternative music festival.

"We're unbelievably excited to be bringing these huge names to Folkestone, but our aim has always been to develop the local music scene and support the wealth of talent Kent has to offer.

He said preparations had been ongoing for the past six months and they were "keeping things simple" for their first year by sticking to a one-day event.

"We're hoping to develop the event next year, with more bands on more stages, possibly over a number of days," said Mr Dutton.

"We're now on the hunt for Kent's greatest bands to play the festival's second stage and they can get in touch via our website."

The company behind the festival, Hevy, has been involved in Folkestone before in bringing the likes of the Holloways and Turin Brakes to the Leas Cliff Hall.

The announcement comes as the music and arts scene in Shepway continues to thrive, with the opening of Folkestone's latest live venue Quarterhouse already attracting top jazz players and stand-up acts.

Tickets for the Hevy Festival are priced at £48 and are on sale now at www.hevy.co.uk and from the Leas Cliff Hall box office.

TALK TIME

JAMIE MARTIN

The police community support officer for Boxley took the time to speak to Yourmaidstone about her role and how speeding is a major issue in the area

Which area in Maidstone do you cover?

The Boxley Parish area, which includes Grove Green, Sandling, Lordswood and Walderslade.

Tell us what your role includes?

My main role is to provide a high-visibility policing presence, to give crime prevention advice to the elderly or the young if they have been a victim of crime, and also to engage with and provide reassurance to the community.

What are the main issues raised by residents?

Speeding. There are lots of different speed limits in the parish so trying to enforce these presents a challenge and was raised by residents at a recent meeting. And litter and anti-social behaviour are issues around Tesco and shops in Grove Green, where youngsters congregate.

How do you plan to address these?

Local PC Lee Cumberland has been conducting speed checks. We also are trying to encourage Speedwatch, a scheme which gets the community involved by asking volunteers note the speed of vehicles and educate drivers. We have also been organising a community litter-pick with the help of Maidstone council and the Cubs. Anti-social behaviour will not be tolerated and we have been giving out notices to those who create a nuisance, mostly for noisy motorcycles. We can also seize motorbikes from persistent offenders.

How can residents get in touch with you?

Telephone me on 01622 604392.

Green Party want town's speed limit reduced to 20mph

■ BY ANNA WHITE
CAMPAIGNERS have launched a bid to make the county town's residential roads safer by reducing the speed limit to 20mph. Maidstone Green Party has chosen Saturday as the Day of Green Action, when they will launch the 20mph Maidstone campaign. Stuart Jeffery, the Green Party's parliamentary candidate for Maidstone and Weald, said: "The vast majority of people want cars travelling more slowly to go slower and the public backing for 20mph speed limits is overwhelming. "Hard evidence shows that cars travelling at 20mph are much safer than those going at 30mph, yet most residential streets in Maidstone allow cars to travel too quickly. "The campaign is the continued only over the past 20 years, and letting them walk to road safety. "With fatal road accidents in the road for a 20mph Maidstone has never been greater. "The campaign has received support from the Department of Transport, which has pledged to recommend to councils to implement the reduced speed limit. The campaign hopes to follow in the footsteps of Norwich, Portsmouth and Oxford, where the campaign has been a success. The launch will be held at County Hall, in Maidstone, at 10am. Mr Jeffery added: "We will be ad-

Don't slow us down in town any more

After reading about the Green Party's plan to impose 20mph speed limits on Maidstone's roads in last week's paper I felt I had to write in.

The roads around the town centre are already hopelessly clogged up and I can't see how lowering the speed limit will help this.

Using the one-way system is already painful enough and the rare times when traffic can move above 20mph should not be stopped, it's a blessed relief!

Another effect of lowering the speed limit would be to cause more pollution, as cars sit in town centre jams, at a time when we are all worrying about the effects of global warming.

Surely this is what the Green Party are trying to avoid?

The only thing they have got right is that more children should be walking to school rather than being driven by their mums in huge four wheel drive vehicles – "for safety" of course.

This is largely down to parents being too lazy, but if reducing the speed limit to 20mph on roads around schools is seen as making them safer and encourages people to walk the school run, then so be it.

But please don't do it on every road around Maidstone as that will drive us all crazy.

Compensation campaign stacks up against French

I agree, stop our traffic misery

Kent County Council are quite right with their campaign to try and get compensation from the French over the ferry blockade.

Every time there is a problem across the Channel we in Kent have to suffer.

It is really infuriating. Residents of this county have no control over fish quotas, shipping regulations or whatever else it is they are going on about.

There is nothing we can do to help or hinder them, yet we are forced to endure hours of traffic misery because of a dispute which has absolutely nothing to do with us.

So I agree – Enough is Enough.
Michael Hardy, from West Malling by email

We'd never get away with same

If a group of British workers carried on in the same way as the French fishermen you can bet there would be uproar in Europe.

Other affected countries – especially if they happened to be France – would queue up to condemn British arrogance and high-handedness.

But no one seems to have anything to say in the EU Parliament to the French.

I thought free movement of goods and people between member states was one of the cornerstones of the EU.

Well the French are quite clearly breaking that edict and they should be punished for doing so.

No freedom of speech would be sickening

It is important to remember that, despite how people may spin comments, everyone is entitled to their own opinion.

Just because they are an elected representative of a political party, does not mean that they are speaking on behalf of their party.

It annoys me that so many comments made by individuals are now attached to their party as well to make a cheap political point.

Whatever happened to freedom of speech and individual opinion?

Alan Collins, from Twydall, comment posted on web story at www.yourmaidstone.co.uk

Council refund is no compensation

So it looks as though Kent County Council may get some of the money it so foolishly invested in Icelandic banks back.

But that does in no way exonerate the staff from what was as an appallingly poor piece of judgement.

Even if some of the taxpayers' money is returned that should in no way excuse the fact that this was a serious error of judgement and whoever was at fault needs to be held accountable.

Philip Blair, from Bearsted, by email

Save our villages, build housing estates

The villages of the county are set to face a slow death unless something is done to provide more and better housing.

The Commission for Rural Communities has identified this as a problem and about time too.

The fact that house prices have been falling is not relevant – most young people and first-time buyers can not get anywhere near the asking price for some of the desirable properties in our attractive villages.

Wealthy commuters and even people buying a second home are destroying the village way of life and this must be addressed.

If the price is some housing estates, unpopular with locals, being constructed then so be it.

Moira Shelley, by email

Is Government short-changing us again?

So, according to the Government the recession is set to be over by Christmas.

Has anyone got any faith in these sorts of predictions anymore?

We are constantly being told recovery is on the way and things are getting back on track but all I hear about is people being laid off from their jobs and stores closing down.

Any talk of a recovery seems hopelessly premature.

With real ales and fajitas, they've got it all wrapped up

■ The White Horse

THE White Horse in Lenham Heath Road, Sandway has become a well-regarded place for both Mexican and traditional British food.

Situated in the heart of the countryside but within easy reach of the county town of Maidstone the family run and family friendly establishment serves a fine selection of real ales on pump from the Whitstable Brewery – just a few miles away.

The eatery prides itself on the locally sourced and high quality food on offer and a wide range of loyal customers have always found them extremely good value for money.

The pub is open for food from Monday to Friday between the hours of 5pm and 11pm from Monday to Friday and from 12 noon to 12 midnight on Saturday.

Sunday opening is from 12 noon until 10.30pm.

A special karaoke evening is being held on May 23 and the pub has a patio and decked area with a large garden and children's play area also available for customers to enjoy.

These are particularly popular during the summer months as drinkers and diners can relax outside and enjoy the sunshine in a traditional English setting.

A full children's menu is also offered with mini fajitas among the most popular dishes.

An all-you-can-eat fajita buffet is held in the pub every Wednesday and the cost is just £10 per head.

Also extremely popular is a chicken and rib night which takes place on Thursdays and costs £11.95 per diner.

The pub has been in business since July 2008 and since then has gained a reputation for excellent food, great wines and beers and friendly knowledgeable service with diners from across the county.

Manager Peter Larkin said: "It is a very friendly place with welcoming locals, wonderful countryside nearby and a great community spirit."

It's a funny road making it in Hollywood for Anna

■ BY ELLIE GENOWER

ANNA Faris may be fast becoming famous as one of the funniest ladies in Hollywood, but the bubbly blonde actress says she wasn't always known for her comic touch.

"I had been in local theatres – all dramatic and never thought of myself as a comedian in any form," she says of her early acting experiences. "In fact nobody did – nobody thought I was funny at all."

So it's funny now that Anna, who stars alongside Seth Rogen in the new dark comedy Observe And Report, is bucking the current trend towards male-heavy 'bromances' or buddy movies.

"There's an audience for female-driven comedy and I'm hoping to produce and create some more stuff," the 32-year-old says.

"It's fun to play with the boys a little bit in Observe And Report though."

Observe And Report sees Anna play a department store make-up girl who is the object of security guard Ronnie's infatuation. Ronnie, a delusional and misguided dreamer played by Seth Rogen, spends much of the film trying to catch the mall's elusive pervert.

At the same time, he tries his best to join the police force and woo Brandi, the woman of his dreams, who he doesn't realise is actually a rather mean, selfish character.

"I was really happy, because it's very rare that you come across a character that's so offensive and awful. It's like taking a bite of a juicy apple, but naughty," Anna says.

"It's really fun for me to play a character that makes no apologies for herself. She's definitely the worst character I've ever played. She's selfish, rude, catty, bitchy, dopey and tacky."

But Observe And Report isn't just your aver-

BUBBLY: Anna Faris stars in Observe and Report

age Hollywood comedy. Its plot takes humour to some pretty dark places and Anna confesses she has a few worries about her parents watching a particularly drunken love scene between Brandi and Ronnie.

"I told them they needed to drink a bunch of wine, at least three bottles, before seeing the movie so maybe they would pass out before they got to the love making scenarios!" she says.

However, the tougher scenes were made easier by her "awesome" co-star Seth Rogen.

Seth returns the compliment, describing Anna's performance in Observe And Report as "the type of performance I don't think a lot of women would do".

It's all a long way from Anna's roots in Seattle where she grew up with "pretty conservative" parents. She cut her acting chops on small productions before landing a part in the first Scary Movie. Subsequent memorable roles in the likes of Friends and Lost In Translation led to the lead role in House Bunny, which she also produced.

But despite the call of stardom, she has managed to keep much of her personal life out of the tabloids, largely staying off the paparazzi radar. "I lead such a boring life," she says.

"Nobody pays attention. If somebody does take my picture, I'm eating a burrito in my sweats and my mouth is open. I'm kind of a disgusting, boring person."

It's just a silly phase they're going through

10cc are not in love, they're just on a 94-date tour

FOR nearly 40 years, 10cc has been entertaining audiences all over the world with its music.

The band became a real chart force during the 70s, releasing hits that still receive frequent airplay today, such as Dreadlock Holiday and the perennial favourite I'm Not In Love. Thanks to the enduring popularity of their songs and the ready availability of their music on the internet, 10cc is continuing to win new fans and has never really been off the road.

Frontman Graham Gouldman is a gifted songwriter who developed a love of music when he was just a small child. Just as he was beginning to listen to the radio, the airwaves were carrying the new sounds of skiffle and rock 'n' roll and Gouldman still feels the influence of artists like the Beatles today.

He played in a number of bands in the Manchester area from the early 60s onwards and wrote his first top 10 hit, For Your Love, at the age of just 19. However, he did not get to step into the limelight just yet – the song was actually recorded by the Yardbirds. At that time Gouldman was a member of the Mockingbirds, which had landed a regular spot as a warm-up act for Top of the Pops. So Gouldman had to stand by and watch the audience go wild for the Yardbirds when they came on to sing his song.

By the time he formed 10cc in 1970 with singer-guitarist Eric Stewart and multi-instrumentalists Kevin Godley and Lol Creme, Gouldman had also written hits for the Hollies, Herman's Hermits and Jeff Beck. The band started out as a session group called Hotlegs and enjoyed a surprise hit with Neanderthal Man, before signing to Jonathan King's UK Records label and changing their name to 10cc, inspired by a male bodily function.

The follow-up, Rubber Bullets, topped the chart and really launched 10cc as a pop force to be reckoned with, though success in the US was elusive until 1975 when unconventional ballad I'm Not In Love went to number two in the American charts.

Following the departure of Godley and Creme in 1976, Gouldman and Stewart carried on as a duo until 1984. Gouldman then teamed up with Andrew Gold to form Wax, their most memorable hit being Bridge To Your Heart, and 10cc members reunited in the early 90s to record the album Meanwhile...

Now the band is in the middle of a mammoth 94-date tour, encompassing five countries, and Kent fans will have the chance to see them perform when they visit the county in May. The current line-up, led by Gouldman, comprises lead guitarist Rick Fenn, drummer Paul Burgess, Mick Wilson on percussion and guitar and Mike Stevens on keyboards, guitar and saxophone.

10cc will be performing at the Central Theatre in Chatham on Saturday; the Orchard Theatre, Dartford, on Friday, May 8, and the Assembly Hall Theatre, Tunbridge Wells, on Thursday, May 21.

YOUR TV REVIEW

■ BY TOM BETTS

THE SPEAKER
BBC Two, 8pm, Wednesday
KATIE AND PETER: THE NEXT CHAPTER STATESIDE
ITV 2, 9pm, Thursday

IT'S been a showcase for the most annoying young people in the country to talk their way into everyone's bad books, so it is probably for the best that The Speaker is coming to an end.

There have been a few good performers, but by and large this has been a bit pointless and it's hard to imagine that anyone out there has really been enthralled by the search – especially as so many of the more interesting contestants were given their cards early on.

In tonight's final the last three young orators meet up with Obi Wan Kenobi, or Ewan McGregor as he's more commonly known in a galaxy closer to home.

The actor travels to Malawi with them to look at children's rights, which is bad news for him as he'll be stuck in another country with the gobby, opinionated little tykes.

On their return to Blighty they will let their tenses loose once again to see who can deliver some kind of mesmerising piece of speech to judges comic Jo Brand, ex-basketballer John Amaechi and Jeremy Stockwell – you know, the huvvie with the beret.

Expect mentors Alastair Campbell, Deborah Meaden, Earl Spencer and Kate Silverton to offer a few last pearls of wisdom – you'd hope some of which might actually just be "shhhhhhhhh".

So who will claim the title of Britain's best young speaker and, furthermore, will anyone even care?

Taking boredom to new levels are orange Peter Andre and the even oranger Katie Price, who are currently starring in their umpteenth own reality show. It's interesting only if to see what is happening to Jordan's – sorry, Katie's – face.

TALK IS CHEAP: Jeremy Stockwell, Jo Brand and John Amaechi, the judges on The Speaker

Her mug is starting to veer into Leslie Ash territory with a 'trout pout' that is verging on the utterly ridiculous.

It's the only interesting thing here. Whether it's Peter having trouble with the barbecue, or the couple quarrelling about the decorating, no subject seems too banal for inclusion.

Maybe the next series will be called Katie And Peter Walk The Dogs or Katie And Peter Get Root Canal.

Every moment is memorex'd with no miniscule or pointless exchange too stupid from which to escape.

It really makes you wonder if this was the good stuff, what was left on the cutting-room floor?

It's fun and laughter away at sea

■ BY MICHAEL O'FLAHERTY

YOU'RE joking! That was my reaction when I was invited to learn the art of cracking jokes on a comedy cruise sailing from Nice to Menorca in the Mediterranean.

And so I found myself on-stage aboard the good ship Island Star, trying to make 350 people laugh.

To say I was terrified would be the understatement of the decade.

Earlier in the day, for the cost of a fiver, I had taken a comedy 'master class' with instructor Miles Crawford, from the comedy group Jongleurs.

Before I braved the spotlight, Miles told me how to engage the audience, how to present myself and my material... and, above all, delivery.

So, in trembling tones, I delivered my short joke: "I was driving in Ireland from Cork to Donegal. I was very tired and stopped at a small hotel. I knocked on the door. A yawning night-porter came to the door."

"I asked if he had a room. 'No trouble at all,' he said. 'You wouldn't happen to have a room with a bath?' I asked. 'That's no trouble either,' said the porter."

"He pulled down a key and said 'You're in room number seven, sir... and the room with the bath is at the end of the corridor.'"

Laughter, applause! I was made! I introduced the next act and exited left.

I had flown to Pisa to join the Island Star in the middle of a Mediterranean cruise. Formerly called Horizon, with 10 decks and 753 comfortable cabins for 1,875 passengers tended by 573 crew, this impressive ship will be joining the Celebrity Cruises fleet during 2009.

JOKES AHoy: Onboard the comedy cruise ship Island Star, travelling from Nice to Menorca in the Mediterranean

It follows the merger of First Choice with Thomson within the TUI travel giant.

The Island brand stands for casual cruising, with a slogan of "relaxed, informal and friendly".

Guided bike tours are another innovation. Some of my fellow passengers had survived a bike ride into Rome through its snarling, chaotic traffic. They were therefore well equipped for the relatively calm bike tour I took after we docked in the beautiful port of Mahon in Menorca.

We set off on well-equipped mountain bikes with what seemed like dozens of gears. I struggled up the first hill and enjoyed a quiet ride out into the country.

Our ultimate goal, after more muscle-aching hills, was the beautiful beach of Binibeca, where I had a swim and bemoaned my increasing saddle-soreness, and finally made it back to the ship exhausted after a 24-mile ride.

At dinner I was recognised by some of the passengers – the result of the comedy night. I was a celebrity! Then I saw they were laughing again – at my bandy-legged, saddle-sore walk.

That night I enjoyed a gourmet dinner in the elegant Oasis restaurant. There are also seven bars, ranging from The Pub, which is as its name sounds, to the quieter, wood-panelled Captain's Club.

The Oasis is the only restaurant on the ship where people dress for dinner and costs extra, as did the slightly less formal Steak House; the other restaurants are free.

And what of my fellow passengers? Relaxed, friendly and informal, as indicated by the slogan of the ship.

If any of us had wished to get married on board, it would have been no problem at all – nor would special anniversary and birthday celebrations... even a renewal of wedding vows. But I was happy to stick to the jokes.

WHEN IN ROME: Enjoy a day in this fascinating city

Travel Facts

• Michael O'Flaherty was a guest of Island Cruises, which offers seven-night Western Mediterranean fly-cruises out of Palma, Majorca, from March 31, 2009, from £649, calling at Olbia (Sardinia), Civitavecchia (Rome), Livorno (Florence/Pisa), Villefranche (France) and Mahon (Menorca). Price is based on two adults sharing inside cabin on Aqua deck and includes return flights and transfers.

• Guided bike tours cost £29, except a full day in Rome, which is £49.

• Although Michael O'Flaherty's comedy master class with Jongleurs cost only £5, it sadly won't be available in 2009 – although Island Escape will carry professional comedians to entertain passengers through summer 2009.

Rise in unemployment prompts rent warning

LANDLORDS are being urged to find ways to ensure they receive their rent as the jobs market is so precarious.

Property website Smartlandlord.co.uk advised those renting out homes to be extra cautious after it released figures showing an increasing number of unemployed people were renting.

A year ago only 3.1 per cent of new tenants renting private property were unemployed but that figure has risen to 7.8 per cent.

Keshav Thukaram, managing director of Smartlandlord, said: "With the social housing sector ill-equipped to cope with the extra demand, private landlords are increasingly being called upon to take in unemployed people on benefit."

"There is evidence that some landlords are suffering because benefits aren't being paid on time, so landlords taking this route must ensure they know their rights, and apply to have the rent paid directly by the council if they experience problems."

The numbers of self-employed and retired tenants have also risen. Mr Thukaram urged landlords to run checks on new tenants, but also to ensure rents are secure should their tenants' financial circumstances change.

Negative equity is back but burden is shared

RESEARCH by the Council of Mortgage Lenders shows negative equity – where a home is worth less than its mortgage – has become an increasing problem because of falling house prices.

However, the group added that two thirds of those with negative equity were experiencing only "modest shortfalls" of ten per cent or less, and the scale of the issue needs to be kept in perspective, as home-owners still have about £2.1 trillion of unmortgaged housing equity.

Bob Pannell, the council's head of research, said: "Although negative equity has resurfaced as house prices have fallen, one big difference from the early 1990s downturn is that it is less concentrated among young, first-time buyers, and more evenly spread across wider age groups and those at different points on the housing ladder."

At the bottom of the last housing market recession in 1993, 1.5 million households were in negative equity.

The council said today's borrowers were following the pattern seen in the 1990s and choosing to stay put, waiting to recover their equity position.

Missed opportunity as Chancellor overlooks needs of the market

■ BY NICK AMES

THE Budget for the next financial year has come under fire from two influential groups for not doing enough to help lift the property market out of the slump.

The Association of Residential Letting Agents (Arla) attacked Chancellor Alistair Darling's Budget, announced in the Commons last week, calling it "wholly unsatisfactory" for having failed to give incentives for landlords to improve rental housing for a growing number of tenants.

And the National Association of Estate Agents (NAEA) said the policies put forward were ineffectual and would do nothing to help the economy recover.

It wanted more to be done to encourage first-time buyers on to the housing ladder to get the market going again.

Ian Potter, operations manager of Arla, said: "Alistair Darling had a clear opportunity to improve the bottom end of the rental market and chose to maintain the status quo for Britain's worse-off tenants."

"Yet again Gordon Brown's administration has wasted an opportunity to improve the quality of stock of lettings property by failing to incentivise landlords through tax relief on labour and materials."

"Not only would this have helped to stimulate the market, particularly in the construction sector, but it would also have provided the greater standards of rented accommodation that this country desperately needs."

"Landlords should be recognised for what they bring not only to the housing market but to the wider economy and treated as any other responsible business."

In its Budget submission, Arla also called on the Government to introduce capital allowances for landlords improving housing stock over a certain age.

A second attack came from the influential estate agents' group who said there was no help for those trying to get on the housing ladder.

Peter Bolton King, chief executive of NAEA, said: "The housing market is the engine of the UK economy and it is likely that this Budget will be remembered as largely ineffectual, given the magnitude of the problem."

"There is very little here for first-time buyers, who need more encouragement to climb on to the property ladder which will get everything moving.

"Mr Darling has used a water pistol to try to put out a fire."

Mr Bolton King also attacked the extension of the £175,000 stamp duty land tax threshold as not going far enough to make any significant impact.

He said: "Merely extending the stamp duty threshold is disappointing. Mr Darling had a real opportunity to get rid of this hated tax, which is seen by many as a tax on aspiration.

"Since the threshold was introduced last autumn it has helped just one third of first-time buyers."

"In this difficult economic time, Mr Darling could have seized the opportunity to encourage first-time buyers to the market and to send a signal of confidence that may have reverberated around the economy."

"Instead he has tried to choose a path to please everyone, which I suspect will please no one."

MOTORS NEWS

VW dealer defies motor sales trend on used cars

BEADLES VW of Maidstone has bucked the economic trend by boosting used car sales 32 per cent in 2009's tricky first quarter. Sales overall are up six per cent too against early 2008.

Keith Dowle, brand manager at the Quarry Wood site, attributed the sales team's (pictured) success in challenging times to pricing plus strong branding and residual values. He said the showroom had also been praised for customer service, monitored using mystery shopper and customer satisfaction surveys.

Barretts Jaguar is the tops with customers

BARRETT'S Jaguar of Canterbury has taken the number one slot in Jaguar UK's customer loyalty and satisfaction award.

Key factors included good customer relationships, ensuring cars were delivered on time and dealing with any subsequent needs professionally and efficiently.

Meaner and leaner the new Freelander arrives

LAND Rover's most fuel-efficient vehicle ever is now available at Barretts, Ashford.

Dealer principal Mark Nicholas, said there had been eager anticipation of the new Freelander 2 TD4e with stop-start, which cuts the engine to avoid unnecessary fuel use and emissions when stopped and then smoothly restarts it when needed, saving some 20 per cent fuel in traffic.

Mr Nicholas said: "Sophisticated controls ensure the Stop/Start system does not compromise the needs of either the driver or the dynamics of the vehicle."

TOUGH LOVE: Keenly-priced and racy looking, the estate version of the Kia Ceed SW looks impressive against the more conventional looking Ford Focus, Vauxhall Astra and VW Golf

Family workhorse comes with thoroughbred appeal

LOOKING for a family workhorse and can't stand the idea of an MPV? Here's a no-brainer option – the Kia Ceed SW.

It's a keenly-priced, racy-looking estate version of the Korean marque's stylish, but slightly less dynamic, rival to the best-selling Ford Focus.

A £700 premium over the hatchback also brings the same unique seven-year/100,000-mile warranty – perhaps even more important if you need to work your estate car hard.

Okay, that fastback styling might not look best for ultimate capacity in load lugging, but it adds 235mm onto the rear section of the hatch version and the tailgate hinges inboard to reduce the upswing and outswing – owners can stand closer to the car and access the boot in tighter spaces.

Boot and maximum load space with seats up is 534 litres – helped by excellent underfloor stowage bins – and 1,664 litres with rear seats folded, compared with 340 and 1,300 respectively for the hatchback Ceed. This makes the SW impressive against estates with more conventional looks too such as the Ford Focus (503 and 1546), Vauxhall Astra (470 and 1550) and new VW Golf Estate (505 and 1550).

Equally impressive is the 113bhp 1.6-litre diesel of our £15,545 LS-spec test car. It is a cracking all-rounder for a potentially hard-working estate car like this and can average nearly 60mpg. It is easily the best power option, though you can also have a 120bhp 1.6-litre petrol, 89bhp 1.6 diesel or 138bhp 2.0 diesel.

And you can forget about plasticky Korean interiors of the past with the intoxicating whiff of Airfix modelling glue; the Ceed range has been designed to be European and is churned out in a state-of-the-art plant in Slovakia with the fit, finish and touch of the interior matching Western standards and even includes an iPod/MP3 player connection that really does work... unlike some.

However, the Ceed's ride can be fidgety and it feels vague when pushed hard on a winding road, though grip is good.

On the other hand, you should view the Ceed SW more as an unbreakable workhorse pitched against van-based MPVs and the likes of Skoda's Roomster and Vauxhall's Meriva, as well as Focus-class estates.

With prices from £12,995, it's a no-brainer.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

HONDA ACCORD

IS it a prestige badge or not? Even Honda is unclear about that. There is no doubting Honda quality, but everyday models like the Jazz supermini – though a marvellous car – harm Honda's argument that the Accord deserves mention alongside the BMW 3-Series. Nevertheless, the Honda is beautifully made, offers a sporting drive and is probably the car least likely to fail en route to a top-level meeting. The diesel's quiet and refined too and the previous generation estate is capacious.

JAGUAR X-TYPE

IT was a slow burn for X-Type sales, highlighted by faltering residuals in the early days. Jag snobs didn't like it being derived from the front driven Mondeo, although Ford-owned Jaguar deflected this by offering the car in Audi-style all-wheel drive only at first. But the 'X' is reliable, drives well in all forms and the smooth diesels and a lovely estate (pictured) redeemed its status. However, used values have stumbled recently and there are serious bargains to be had.

VOLVO S40

OUR smallest contender here, and Volvo's best-ever junior model by far, the S40 shows all the benefits of belonging to the Ford empire while retaining its own Swedish style. It is built on a modified front-driven Ford Focus chassis – nothing wrong there as it's one of the best for keen drivers – while the styling is pure Volvo, complete with scalloped rear wings and tail lights. Inside, is classic Scandinavian too: neat and well arranged, plus an innovative 'flying' centre console.

Leaner and greener in brave new world

SEE THE LIGHT: Seeda is managing the £2.9m pot available for low-carbon initiatives aimed at cutting costs and boosting profits

A POT of £2.9 million is available through the South East England Development Agency (Seeda) for low-carbon initiatives that it reckons will help more than 3,000 regional businesses cut costs and boost profits.

Half the money is from the European Regional Development Fund, and the other half from Seeda, which is setting up programmes covering sustainability issues and the three Rs – reduction, reuse and recycling.

It's all part of a wider range of targets, including an 89,000-tonne reduction in the growth rate of carbon dioxide emissions, a £3.2 million boost to the region's economy and the creation of hundreds of jobs.

Oona Muirhead, Seeda's executive director for skills and sustainable prosperity, said: "In these difficult economic conditions it's all the more important that we help businesses take advantage of new market opportunities in the growing global green economy."

"This is good for profit margins and employment, as well as for tackling the region's ecological footprint."

"This latest round of ERDF funding will help ensure projects that can contribute to a successful, sustainable future for the region don't fall by the wayside."

The funding forms part of the – wait for it – South East England European Regional Development Fund Competitiveness Programme 2007-13 that was approved in December 2007.

The South East was the first UK region to have the programme adopted.

A key priority will be encouraging tiny and slightly larger businesses to work together, forming groups that can benefit from better access to funding.

One of the initiatives covers training programmes for small and medium-size enterprises (SMEs) – and that's most of the firms in Kent – worth some £3,500 each if they want to go sustainable.

■ BY TONY PATEY

This is probably attractive to a lot of owners because customers are becoming more aware of sustainable and environmental business practices.

However, they'll be asked to invest in their companies so policies are carried out and companies will have to meet eligibility criteria.

The funding is in the hands of PLATOGB – an offshoot of Southern Enterprise Alliance, a private not-for-profit company – and it's for a two-year business and personal development programme.

Programme director Alexandra Massey said: "In these lean times, the green issue is having more of an impact than ever."

"If the consumer has the choice, locally-sourced products with a neutral carbon footprint are winning over something that's been flown in or has a heavy carbon footprint."

"This programme is about helping local companies implement a sustainable agenda, add a positive contribution to their marketing and make a difference to their profits."

Participants can go along to free induction seminars to learn more before going on the full programme – in Kent they are on Thursday, May 21, at Ashford International Hotel, from 4.30pm to 6pm, and on Tuesday, May 26, at the Holiday Inn, Rochester, at the same times.

IMPORTANT: Rob Key is hoping captaining the Lions will lead to a place in the England squad

Key hopes Lions' chance will push England ambition

ROB Key will aim to push his case for a call-up to the England Test squad when he captains the Lions team to play West Indies this week.

The four-day game against the tourists begins at Derby tomorrow, ruling the Kent skipper out of the County Championship game with Essex, which gets underway at Chelmsford today.

England national selector, Geoff Miller, said: "This is a really exciting summer for cricket in England and Wales and the Lions matches are excellent opportunities for players to push for England places."

"The Lions squads feature players who display qualities that are capable of winning matches for England, so these games are very important."

"Rob Key captained outstandingly well in New Zealand and then took the reins in similar fashion for the MCC in the championship county match, so he will continue to lead for the match against West Indies."

Key's fellow opener Joe Denly, however, has not been included in the squad and will therefore be available for Kent's game at Chelmsford, where Martin van Jaarsveld is likely to lead the side.

Gills boss Mark Stimson discusses how to deal with the lottery of the play-offs

Stones end season with a standing ovation from fans

IT isn't often a team gets a standing ovation after losing its fifth straight game and having failed to score a goal in 498 minutes, but a young Maidstone side was applauded off the Bourne Park pitch on Saturday, having shown glimpses of a bright future.

For the first time in four seasons neither promotion nor relegation hinged on the result of the Stones' final game of the season and as a consequence of this, plus a rash of suspensions and injuries, nine reserves made the squad.

Yet they matched Billericay in almost every department and the only goal was down to two of United's most experienced players.

Nine minutes before the break neither Lloyd Hume, making his first start for over two seasons, nor Ryan Royston cut out Ashley Dumas' cross and Rikki Burbridge was gifted a simple finish from just outside the six-yard box.

In first half stoppage time the Stones should have equalised when Elliott Bradbrook beat a series of defenders and laid the ball on a platter for Ashley Dann, but with too much time to think, Dann screwed the chance wide.

It was an isolated error from a young player, but the side was still subjected to criticism from the main stand, from a couple of misanthropic windsacks who were intent on finding faults, like Stadler and Waldorf from the Muppet Show, but without the humour.

For once, gloriously, the usually silent majority of supporters revolted, shouting the moaners down and even Hume, whose relationship with the home fans hasn't always been convivial, was given an ovation when he finally came off with a quarter of an hour to play.

Maidstone's only real chance of an equaliser came on 63 minutes, when Dann squared the ball to Steve Elliott, who shot just over, but by this time nobody cared. After the tension of last season's final day survival act at Folkestone, mid-table obscurity was an overwhelming relief.

Chairman is open to move away from Bourne Park

EXCLUSIVE

BY FRED ATKINS

MAIDSTONE United may have played their final game at Bourne Park after chairman Paul Bowden-Brown admitted he would listen to offers to ground-share away from Sittingbourne.

"It's no secret we had a seven-year agreement and it's come to an end," Bowden-Brown told Yourmaidstone. "We wouldn't be where we are today without (Sittingbourne chairman) Andy Spice, but I've got to go away and work out how I can cut our costs, while generating money for the team and the new stadium."

If a better deal is available elsewhere Maidstone could move, with Ebbsfleet, Tonbridge and Ashford all rumoured destinations.

Bowden-Brown acknowledged there was some substance to these stories: "I've been talking to Ashford chairman Don Crosbie about the people behind their planned Sports Village, because there are people there who might be able to bring the Stones home," he said. "But it would be silly to say we're going there because from what I hear they might be going into administration."

MOVE AWAY? Finances are in question as chairman Paul Bowden-Brown considers moving elsewhere

Informal talks have been held in the past with Ebbsfleet and Tonbridge, but Bowden-Brown remains hopeful an improved deal can be struck with Sittingbourne, despite sounding a warning about the game in general.

"Football's in a state," he said. "Gates will drop everywhere because of the economic climate and players will find they won't be able to get the same money next season. You'll always get the odd club prepared to pay over the odds, but we'll have a reduced budget next season and so will a lot of other clubs."

Bowden-Brown confirmed joint-managers Alan Walker and Lloyd Hume would be staying next season, but says the make-up of the squad won't be known until May 31, when the duo hand him their retained list. No players have yet indicated they want to leave, but Bowden-Brown said: "For some players the game is their only source of income, so I'd understand if they got offers elsewhere and thank them for what they've done for us."

ROLE MODELS: Ashley Ulph and Chris Smalling have put a positive focus on Maidstone youth team players

Carter joins growing list of success stories from youth squad

A YEAR after Chris Smalling made the jump from the Ryman Premier Division to the Premier League, Maidstone United are basking in the reflected glory of seeing another of their youth team players earn England Schoolboy honours.

Rob Carter is the fourth graduate of the Stones youth set-up to receive an England call in the past three seasons, following Smalling, who subsequently joined Fulham, Ashley Ulph and Sam Morrison.

Their understandably delighted coach Tony Cornwell said: "It is a great achievement for the club and the coaching system. Obviously credit has to go to Kent schools and the Kent FA, but for a club to produce four in a short space of time shows we have a very good youth structure and players recognise the opportunity Maidstone United can provide."

Carter, who played for England in the Centenary Shield tournament joined United from Dartford, after seeing the others progress.

"He had seen the success of Chris Smalling and Ashley Ulph and felt Maidstone was the right place to progress his career," Cornwell said. "In many ways there is no secret to our success and I think when you have one player get through to the England Schoolboys people start to take notice."

Ulph has become a first-team regular, while Morrison made his league debut against Billericay and was one of a number of players praised by club chairman Paul Bowden-Brown. "It could have been very difficult for us today, but the young players we had out there did us proud."

CENTRE STAGE: David Mayes, centre, had the best start to his GT career at Silverstone

Mayes secures debut GT win at Silverstone circuit

STAPLEHURST driver David Mayes made the best possible start to his GT career, by winning on his debut at Silverstone last weekend.

The reigning Caterham Superlight Champion qualified on pole by over a second from his nearest rival and was quicker than a number of more powerful cars.

The 20-year-old then took the chequered flag in the first main race, despite having only minimal experience in the class.

"The GT format is very different from what I am used to in single seaters," he said. "The grid is made up of four different power classes so you have to focus on who you are racing, add rolling starts, slick tires and a roof and it feels completely different. I couldn't believe how hot it got in the car."

Mayes earned his drive in the LKM

MOTORSPORT

Porsche 996 after winning last year's Caterham title, but his testing plans were thrown into disarray when he was only able to drive the car for four laps around Donington at the end of last season.

Mayes had just 15 minutes of practice time before qualifying began, but said: "We were lucky to get any racing at all – the organisers did a fantastic job."

The man who first spotted Mayes' potential, local businessman Gary Eastwood, was denied the class victory in race two when his car's front splitter broke early in the race, with just over a second separating the top three finishers at the flag.

The duo will be back in action this weekend at the A1 GP meeting at Brands Hatch.
